Class description:

Travel the world without leaving home by studying the history of the world! This comprehensive class for high schoolers will take the students through the history of the world as we explore the different civilizations in various geographical locations and time periods. This course will include reading of the textbook, answering weekly summary questions pertaining to the text, weekly discussions about historical events, monthly paragraphs or essays expressing the students' opinions and research, and opportunities for public speaking. Taught from a Christian point of view, this World History class will also meet the students' Michigan requirement for World History. The goal of this class is for your student to fall in love with history!

About the teacher: Karen Newlon has a degree in Psychology and Sociology from a Christian university and a Masters in Social Work from WMU. She homeschooled her own children for 16 years, including teaching at various homeschool co-ops. She loves history and is passionate about students learning and using it in daily lives. Karen loves God and desires to glorify God through her teaching. Hobbies include reading, paddle boarding, traveling, games, and walking.
